D O S S I E R

Margaret is an Occupational Psychologist and is Chartered by the British Psychological Society. Prior to training as a psychologist she spent 15 years in the marketing sector most recently for Microsoft Ltd. Margaret combines her knowledge of Occupational Psychology and her experience as a leader to help organisations increase the performance of their leaders and senior teams. She has extensive experience of working with leaders and teams in the private sector including AXA Life, BAE Systems and Invensys and also the public sector, including the NHS, Adult Social Care and Exeter University.

Margaret relishes challenging assignments and her personal strengths include her insight and ability to inspire individuals & groups at all levels within organisations to develop their potential at work. She is able to help build trust and openness between individuals and teams whilst negotiating complex organisational dynamics. These strengths make her a very effective agent for change at group & individual level. Her skill set is most powerful when working with change at organisational level.

Margaret is an Affiliate of Exeter University Centre for Leadership Studies and an Associate of Bristol Business School. She is also a member of the BPS Division of Occupational Psychology and Special Group in Coaching Psychology. Level A & B trained, she has access to a wide variety of Psychometric Instruments.

TESTIMONIAL

"Margaret worked with our Senior Management Team to increase their personal and team effectiveness. I have quickly seen an improvement in communications across the team and we are now converting this into action to drive improvement in service provision. Margaret's approach to her assignments has been exemplary, holding senior confidences of the leadership and facilitating this with the highest level of integrity."
